What is a vCISO?

A vCISO (virtual Chief Information Security Officer) co-managed offering is a service that provides clients with virtual access to experienced cybersecurity experts who act as their virtual CISO. These experts work in collaboration with the client's existing in-house security team, offering guidance, support, and expertise on all aspects of the organization's cybersecurity strategy. The goal is to help the organization manage risk, implement security best practices, and stay compliant with industry regulations. This type of service allows organizations to benefit from having a dedicated CISO without having to hire one full-time.

vCISO is for organizations that...

- Lack the resources to hire a full-time CISO
- Require the expertise of a dedicated cybersecurity professional to stay ahead of evolving threats and meet industry regulations
- Need a tailored approach to their unique security needs
- Are looking for a cost-effective solution to improve their overall cybersecurity posture
- Have limited in-house cybersecurity expertise and require additional support and guidance
- Require a comprehensive approach to their overall security strategy, including risk management, incident response, and disaster recovery planning
- Need to ensure that their security policies, procedures, and systems are aligned with their business goals and objectives.
